

How to Stay Afloat

In a World That's Circling the Drain

How to Handle Adversity

Session One - 1/24/08

Introduction

Any economist worth his salt can predict the frequency and depth of recessions based on history. Nobody's surprised, things tighten up right on schedule. Does that mean that everyone is calm and resigned to the conditions? No way! People hyperventilate! Feverish scrambling and last chance schemes are the order of the day for some who are trying to "fix it!" There are, however, things you ought to do when the economy takes a scheduled break.
